How to Bake Perfect Quick Breads

Quick breads come in many shapes, sizes, textures and flavors, and each type has its own secrets for success. First, some general advice.

Pans: Shiny metal cookie sheets and muffin pans are best for browning biscuits and muffins.

Dull metal, aluminum, or glass loaf pans are best for browning loaves. For best results, use loaf pans of the suggested size. Larger pans will give thinner, less attractive loaves. If your pans are smaller, fill them no more than ⅔ full and bake the rest of the batter in custard cups, filling them ⅔ full. (Baking time for the cups will be shorter than that for the loaves so start testing for doneness after 20 minutes.)

Mixing: When assembling ingredients, unless the recipe directs otherwise, always stir the dry ingredients together for even distribution. Don't overmix; mix only as long as the recipe specifies or the texture may be coarse and tough.

Here are more specific hints to give you better results when baking the different types of quick breads.

Biscuits: Whether making rolled or dropped biscuits, mix dough only until it leaves the side of the bowl. The dough will still be sticky.

For rolled biscuits, turn dough out onto a floured surface and knead a few strokes to blend ingredients and make dough easy to handle. Then, because biscuits double in size as they bake, roll dough to half the thickness you want in baked biscuit. For high biscuits, roll dough ½ inch thick; for crusty, thin biscuits, roll it ¼ inch thick.

To keep biscuit tops level, press the floured biscuit cutter straight down without twisting or cut them with firm downward strokes with floured, sharp knife. Use a wide spatula or pancake turner to transfer biscuits to cookie sheet. Cut biscuits close together to keep rerolling to a minimum. To reroll, press, don't knead, trimmings lightly together; roll and cut.

To produce soft-sided biscuits, place them close together in a shallow baking pan. For biscuits with crusty sides, place them at least one inch apart on cookie sheet.

Muffins: Perfect muffins are tender, even-textured and slightly rounded on top. Overmixing makes them tough, with tunnels and peaked tops. For best results, stir dry ingredients to mix well, then add liquid ingredients all at once and stir just a few strokes until flour is moistened. Batter will be lumpy, not smooth.

After spooning batter into muffin-pan cups, wipe off any that spills on pan. Half fill any empty cups with water so that fat used for greasing won't burn on.

Loaves: To test for doneness, insert a toothpick into center of loaf at end of minimum baking time. If recipe says it should come out clean, there should be no crumbs clinging to it. If bread is very moist and recipe says toothpick should come out almost clean, loaf is done if only a few crumbs cling to toothpick. Don't worry if loaf is cracked on top-a deep crack down center of quick-bread loaves is typical. To serve, cut bread in thin slices when loaves have cooled.

Pancakes and Waffles: When mixing batter, stir quickly and only until flour is moistened; batter will be lumpy.

If pancake griddle or waffle baker is not automatic, test temperature by sprinkling with a few drops of water. Drops should sizzle. If using electric skillet, griddle or waffle baker, follow manufacturer's directions.

For a regular-size pancake, pour batter from a ¼ cup measure; for a silver-dollar size one, use a measuring tablespoon of batter. After pouring batter onto griddle, cook until top is bubbly. When edges begin to look dry and some bubbles burst, turn pancakes and brown on underside.

When baking waffles, pour batter into center of baker; then close lid quickly and don't open until waffle stops steaming or until light on the waffle baker goes out. Bake a little longer for crisp waffles or have waffle on the baker a few seconds after the cover is lifted.

If pancake or waffle batter becomes too thick on standing, thin to desired pouring consistency with a little more liquid (milk or buttermilk). Refrigerate any leftover batter and use it next day. Keep pancakes and waffles warm by placing in oven preheated to 250°F.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
POTATO REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

1 cup mashed potatoes
⅓ cup butter or margarine, melted
½ cup sugar
6 to 8 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 yeast cake
½ cup lukewarm potato water
1 cup lukewarm milk

Put potatoes, butter, sugar, salt, and eggs together and blend thoroughly. Dissolve yeast in water. Add to milk, then add to potato mixture. Add enough flour to make stiff dough. Place in a large bowl and let rise double in bulk. Knead lightly and rub top with melted butter. Store in refrigerator until ready to use. Shape into rolls, let rise until double in bulk. Bake in very hot oven (450°F) for 10 to 15 minutes.

Stonewall Extension Club Met

The Stonewall Extension HOmemakers Club met on September 12, 1974, with eight members and three visitors present. The president, Helen Routon, called the meeting to order, our hostess, Helen Thomas, read a portion of the Bible and led in prayer. Helen Routon read a poem dipicting "September."

Mrs. Becky Mince presented a very interesting program on "Flower Arrangements."

The "Pennies for Friendship" were collected, the Treasurer gave her report, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Achievement Day will be on October 26, 1974, at 1:00 p.m. in the new high school cafeteria. Mrs. Walton has requested volunteers to model clothes that day.

Our president also reminded us of the Railroad Festival to be held the week end of October 12 and 13th.

We were happy to welcome two new members into our club fellowship. Mrs. Jean Abernathy and Mrs. Wanda Denny.

Our next meeting will be on October 10th with Eleanor Stratton.

After we recited the Homemakers Creed and Prayer we adjourned to enjoy refreshments served by our hostess.

Eleanor Stratton, Sec.

Ye Olde County Fair-Oct. 4 & 5

Rustburg Middle School is to be the site of Ye Olde County Fair on Oct. 4 and 5. The fair will feature exhibits of agricultural products, garden produce, home sewing, crafts, canned and preserved foods, and baked goods. There will be separate exhibit areas for hobby collections. The fair provides an excellent opportunity for local civic clubs and service groups to promote their organizations. A special class has been set up for educational exhibits designed to inform the public of the club or organization's purpose and activities.

Exhibits will be accepted for the fair from 9 to 1 on Oct. 4. The fair will be closed to the public from 2 to 5 for judging. Then the exhibits will be open on Friday evening from 6 to 10. The fair will be open all day public from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday. The concluding event on Saturday evening at 7 will be a talent show.

A sorghum mill will be operated on the fairgrounds on Saturday. The sorghum will be crushed and the juice boiled to molasses in the old fashioned way. The sorghum will be sold by the quart. The Michaels brothers, who will have the sorghum mill, will also operate a cider press. The cider will be sold by the cup. A horse drawn wagon will be on the fair grounds to provide free rides. Food will be available all day. The Campbell County Recreation Department will organize games and contests.

The County Bicentennial Commission, sponsors of the fair, will have plates, composition, and wooden nickels for sale. The plates feature three historical scenes framed around the county. The wooden nickels are covered Bridge, and the old Quaker Meetinghouse. The scenes are available in sepia or in full color. The composite features a variety of historical scenes from around the county and is accompanied by an explaination sheet. The wooden nickles show the county seal.

The Bicentennial Commission has again provided an enjoyable cultural event in the county. There will be no admission charges. The fair is located in Rustburg, the county seat, for easy accessibility. Come, save money and gas, and learn about how little things used to be in Campbell County.

The Bicentennial Commission is appointed by the County Board of Supervisors. The co-chairmen are C. R. Carson and Bruce Harvey.

Food Shopper

It's apple picking time again! Virginia's apple crop is coming in early this year so it's time to get some crisp, juicy apples for your favorite recipe or for plain eating out of the hand. Again this year the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce has assembled brochures that list orchards that sell to consumers on a pick your own or select your own apples basis.

What could be more fun than a trip to the apple orchards located in beautiful sections of scenic countryside? The kids will love it, plus Mom can stock up on apples at farm prices. Plan ahead and make it a day's outing: take a picnic lunch along.

After you get those versatile apples home be sure to store than around 35°, refrigerate as soon as possible. Always keep tabs on the apples and sort carefully. Then, use them for making cakes, pies and applesauce. Of course, that's just a few ideas. In fact when you visit the apple orchards be sure and request a recipe brochure that each orchard has available. You may find a new "favorite" to use with your fresh picked apples.

Because of the large number of orchards now listed in the apple pick your own program it was necessary to divide the orchards by geographical area. When requesting an apple pick your own brochure indicate which of the following areas you are interested in visiting: Roanoke, Amherst, Nelson, or Northern Virginia. Write to: Mr. C. C. Mayes
Va. Dept. of Agriculture & Commerce
203 N. Governor St.
Richmond, VA 23219

Be sure and take advantage of those fresh juicy Virginia apples at an orchard near you.

HARVEST IS ALMOST OVER

The final days of harvest are upon us. The corn stalks are dry and give forth a song as the wind plays upon them. Soon the first frost will come and turn the leaves to brilliant hews before the long winter subdues the once lush greenery.

This time of the year reminds me of another harvest. The harvest I think of was a past harvest. "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved." Jer. 8:20. This was a complaint the Israelites made. Some of them were captives in Babylon and were disappointed because they had not been freed from their captivity. They had dreamed that the march of the Chaldeans would be stopped, and the land would be delivered from their invasion as soon as the summer fruit gatherings were over. The longed for deliverance never came. As a result they set themselves to complaining that God had not saved them. But they failed to remember the reason they were in this state to start with. Their sin had separated them from God and they had not repented of it. They had looked to Egypt for deliverance instead of the Lord. The house of bondage is the wrong place to look for salvation. They had depended on outward privileges and had provoked the Lord to anger by worshipping idols and yet they blamed God that they were not saved (v. 19). If God had set them free He would have been sanctioning idolatry. Spurgeon said, "Christ comes to save us from our sins, not to make it safe to do evil. That blood which washes out the stain brings with it also a hatred to the thing which had made the stain . . . The friend of sinners is the enemy of all sin." They didn't recognize their sin and they rejected the word of the Lord (v. 9). There was no deliverance because they would not repent (v. 6). They could not blush, they were not ashamed of their sin (v. 12). Harvest had come and gone but they were still unsaved. They would not bow to the Lord and would either repent or perish.

Alexander the Great was dying of a wound, which did not seem very dangerous at first, but it baffled his physicians, and so was rapidly becoming mortal. One night, however, it is said he dreamed that some one had brought him a peculiar looking plant, which, when applied to the festering sore, had cleansed and closed it. In the morning, when he awoke, he described the plant; and the historian informs us that it was sought for and found, and when applied to the wound, the fiery pain subsided, and he was speedily healed. Now your soul had received a deadly hurt; it had been stung by the old serpent, the devil. The wound gets worse. There is a tender plant which is able to heal you; it is the Balm of Gilead (v. 22). They use to wound the balsam tree, in order to obtain its healing essence; and so for our transgressions the Savior was wounded and "by His stripes ye are healed."

I do trust that the harvest has not ended for you and hope that God will grant you repentance and faith unto salvation through Christ.

Q. My son, who is 19, has been severely retarded since birth. Could he get payments under the supplemental security income program? My husband works full time and supports us.

A. Regardless of your family income, your son may be eligible for supplemental security income payments. Under the law, mentally retarded people who remain unmarried are considered independent of their families beginning at 18— or 21 if they're in school. Starting then, they may be eligible for supplemental security income. Call or write any social security office for more information about applying for payments for your son.

Q. I will be eligible for Medicare soon. I know that Medicare helps pay many medical expenses, but what are some of the things it doesn't cover?

A. Medicare does not cover preventive medicine, such as routine physical exams. Other non-covered items include prescription drugs and other medicines you buy yourself, eye and hearing examinations, eye glasses, dentures, or routine dental work. Medicare also does not cover custodial care such as help in dressing, bathing and caring for other personal needs. Your Medicare Handbook, which will be mailed to you, lists non-covered items and services.
